A note from the JIBLE creator:

Greetings, fellow BTME treasure hunters. With the release of version 5.0 of the JIBLE, I felt it may be time to briefly introduce myself and provide a bit of (hopefully) helpful information about the JIBLE. From the first version of the JIBLE in June of 2025 (on the heels of the Dillon Q&A) up through now, it has taken on a life of its own, including spawning its own mythology on social media. In the interest of making sure everyone understands what the JIBLE is (and is not), here are a few things to know...

Use and Permissions

The JIBLE was first shared on Discord in June of 2025 as a compilation of rules and parameters for Justin Posey's Beyond the Map's Edge treasure hunt. (All credit for the catchy name goes to fellow Discord hunter and JIBLE proofreader @hi-imerica. Mine was very boring.) It has since been shared by BTME Facebook groups with my permission. After discussion with people who know more about AI than I do, I have withheld consent to have it shared publicly on Reddit due to AI concerns. I do not support the use of the JIBLE for the purpose of training any AI or having AI do the heavy lifting of solving the BTME hunt. That would be so incredibly disappointing. Other than that, any treasure hunter is free to share it with any other treasure hunter, and anyone is welcome to post snippets or screenshots of specific portions online.

Scope

The JIBLE started as a compilation of statements by Justin Posey that constituted what seemed at the time to be clear "rules and parameters" of his hunt—e.g., on publicly accessible land, not in caves, etc. It has since morphed into including just about all public statements by Justin (including some pre-BTME) that could reasonably be interpreted as helpful in solving his treasure hunt. Emphasis on reasonably. I am very cautious in deeming any statements irrelevant and generally err on the side of over-including. That said, I have no plans to add categories for "Suspicious Sneezes" and "Things Justin Has Specifically and Repeatedly Said Aren't Clues But I'm Still Convinced They Are." Thank you for understanding.

Intent

The JIBLE is meant to offer two things. First, a way to quickly look up Justin's actual statements to counteract the often inaccurately paraphrased versions circulated online. Second, a way to synthesize all his statements about any specific topic into one cohesive picture, in chronological order. It is not and cannot be a substitute for watching Justin's live interviews, as a written compilation cannot possibly convey nonverbal cues like facial expressions and tone of voice. (Recall, Justin developed an entire software program for this exact reason....)

Organization by "Topic"

I try my best to group Justin's statements logically by topic. However, it is not always easy to do so. Some discuss two or more topics, so in some cases I have put them under both headings. Some just are not readily categorized, so I have chosen the category that feels like the best fit. If you are not seeing a statement under the topic you expected, a keyword search is often the best way to find a specific statement or topic.

Editing vs. Paraphrasing

The portions of the JIBLE that are from Justin's live interviews are lightly edited for easier reading—mainly, removing the speech fillers we all inevitably use like “um,” “you know,” “I mean,” etc., to make for a cleaner reading experience.

On occasion, I may condense a phrase that was unwieldy or lacked context into something that gives the reader a clearer understanding of what was said or being discussed at the time. Rarely is this the case with Justin's words. More often it is the question that was being posed to Justin, where an interviewer re-phrased the question multiple times or had a long lead-up to the question before Justin began to answer. Either way, anytime I am replacing Justin's or the interviewer's words with a clarified or condensed version, it is in brackets (standard quoting practice) so you can check it yourself against the video or its transcript if you are concerned.

Finally, if you see ellipses, it means I deleted actual language in the middle of a question or answer, often where it trailed off into a totally unrelated subject, or the interviewer was repeating the same thing over and over, for example. This use of ellipses is also standard quoting practice. Overall, if any edit is observed where the meaning seems to be affected, please let me know and I will re-visit to see if it should be revised.

Disclaimers

The legal disclaimers are on the preceding Table of Contents page. Basically, while I have strived for accuracy, in the end it is up to you to verify and interpret Justin's statements. That said, I do believe the JIBLE is a highly accurate, trustworthy reference, from many years of writing and editing experience and a decidedly Type-A personality, and combined with a second layer of review by two very capable hunters I suspect are much smarter than me. Which leads me to...

Acknowledgments

The accuracy of the JIBLE has been further safeguarded by proofreading and other help from my fellow Discord hunters @hi-imerica and @k. I have the utmost confidence in their capabilities and greatly appreciate their contributions to providing the JIBLE as a valuable resource for hunters. Thank them when you “see” them!

In closing...

My hope is that the JIBLE allows you to spend less time trying to remember when and where Justin said what, and more time enjoying and solving his amazing hunt. Please send any suggested improvements or corrections to me at jessinthewest5@gmail.com or message me anytime on Discord. See you out there!

1	Accessibility	During 2023, I intentionally abandoned certain property at an undisclosed location in the western United States (the "Location"). While the Location could be legally accessed at the time of abandonment, participants are solely responsible for determining current access rights and obtaining any required permits or permissions. Land status and access rights may change over time.	BTME website, Legal page	03/27/25	https://treasurequest/en/legal/

3	Accessibility	Q: Can we access the location 24/7? A: As of March 31st 8:10pm central time, 2025, yes. (This is the date and time he was asked the question live on Cowlazars YT channel.)	BTME Announcements page (after Cowlazars & Kpro interview)	03/31/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
4	Accessibility	Q: Can it be found in winter time? Is it year round accessible? A: If there's snowy conditions, you aren't going to have any luck.	BTME Announcements page (after Cowlazars & Kpro interview)	03/31/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
5	Accessibility	Q: Can we access this location 24/7? Or do we, or maybe the location might have hours or things that we would need to worry about not being accessible 24/7? A: As of March 31st at 8:10pm Central time, 2025, no, there shouldn't be any restrictions in that regard.	Cowlazar & Kpro 2025 interview	03/31/25	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=P00hE2BMYbc
6	Accessibility	Q: Can it be found in wintertime or do we need to worry? . . . Is it a year round accessible boots on the ground? A: I don't want anybody doing anything dangerous. If there's if there's snowy conditions, you're not going to have much luck. So, I would completely avoid searching in the snow or any bitter cold conditions like that. What's most important is keeping it safe.	Cowlazar & Kpro 2025 interview	03/31/25	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=P00hE2BMYbc

7	Accessibility	I've done everything I can to ensure this is a safe experience for everyone. Nothing dangerous is required to find the treasure. I implore everyone to review the Safety Guidelines (on the BTME website) and not take any risks in the wilderness.	Mysterious Writings Interview 2025	04/03/25	https://mysteriouswritings.com/justin-posey-six-questions-on-beyond-the-maps-edge-treasure-hunt/
8	Accessibility	You don't need a high clearance vehicle.	BTME website, Rules page	04/09/25	https://treasurequest/en/rules/
9	Accessibility	Q: Is a specialized vehicle needed to find the treasure? A: You don't need a high-clearance vehicle to find the treasure.	The Hollywood Reporter	04/09/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
10	Accessibility	The treasure hunt takes place in the wilderness and is thus not wheelchair accessible. Due to these natural conditions, participants using wheelchairs will require significant assistance to reach the treasure location. The nature of this particular hunt involves outdoor environments that haven't been developed with accessibility features.	BTME website, FAQ page	04/17/25	https://treasurequest/en/faqs/
11	Accessibility	Areas that are legally accessible to the public as of today are valid hunt locations, even if they require longer hikes due to road closures, have seasonal road access restrictions, or involve temporary maintenance-related detours.	BTME website, Announcements page	05/04/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
12	Accessibility	The focus is on legal accessibility of the final location, not convenience of access.	BTME website, Announcements page	05/04/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
13	Accessibility	If you can legally reach the spot (regardless of how challenging the journey may be at times), it remains a valid hunt location.	BTME website, Announcements page	05/04/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
14	Accessibility	Q: Do you have any safety updates or suggestions heading into winter? A: If there's snow, just don't even go. Don't put yourself at risk. That's a statement of safety more than anything. As we move into the winter months, I think some of the southern states actually become more palatable. The same warning goes to the southern states--if it's too hot out, just don't go. Always take somebody with you and make sure you have all the ten essentials. 15	Accessibility	Q: The high clearance / low clearance vehicle question--most of the BLM lands are muddy and rutty depending on the time of the year, [and] might not be as accessible. [Would] your definition of a low clearance vehicle include BLM dirt roads that get a little gamey at times? A: Would my definition of a low clearance vehicle include roads that get a little gamey sometimes or muddy? Yeah, I think under normal operating conditions, a BLM road as you mentioned would be fair game that's passable by an average vehicle. You don't need four-wheel drive. You don't need-- Q: Can a Prius make it? [unintelligible voices talking over one another] A: Yeah I think a Prius would be fine -- I mean I'm trying to think of something that's lower clearance than a Prius. You could go get the treasure with a serious low rider. A Celica would absolutely have made it. A Ferrari could make it.	Sandal Sanders TikTok	09/27/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp
16	Accessibility	Q: You've advised against searching in the snow. Is that primarily an access issue or a concealment issue? A: Access or concealment? It's primarily a safety issue. I don't want anybody doing anything dangerous. And it's funny, because danger is relative, you know, for people that say, are used to the snow, it could actually be far less dangerous than going to say, New Mexico in July and running out of water, you know? I mean, the heat is actually a much more dangerous aspect than the cold here in the US. But, you know, the primary aspect is safety. I don't want anybody getting hurt. And I think, yeah, that's all I'll say about that.	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s

17	Accessibility	Q: Broadly speaking, how important was physical safety in deciding where and how the treasure was placed? A: There were definite safety aspects considered. I certainly wouldn't want somebody scaling a cliff side, you know, with carabiners and rope in order to get to a location. So to the best of my abilities, I've hidden it in a spot that is safe. And, you know, safe is a relative term, it's like, well, it's in the wilderness. And there are animals in the wilderness. There's weather in the wilderness. But to the best of my abilities, I've hidden it in a location that I think is safe.	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s
18	Accessibility	Q: [On subject of safety] Is this a hunt you'd feel comfortable with people approaching responsibly with older children? A: For legal reasons, I will say that the treasure hunt is for adults, 18 years or older. Practically speaking, I'd love to say more about that, but from a legal perspective, I can say it's an adult endeavor.	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s
19	AI Use	Q: You said that you wrote the poem specifically so that AI couldn't solve it, but humans can. In what ways is the poem written to be interpreted by humans and not AI? Like should we be looking for more metaphorically speaking instead of more literally? A: It's a good question, and I think it's probably the right question to be asking. The way I see it is creating a puzzle for an intellect that dwarfs our own is a paradox. So whether or not I've succeeded in my task is TBD, but time will tell. At its core, I really wanted to design something that embraces the core of what it means to be human. There was an astronomical amount of thought that I put into that aspect of designing the treasure hunt. I don't think it's a good idea for me to divulge the tactics that I used because I think that that gives away too much. And in some ways can actually fuel the ability for AI to progress. So I'll have to punt on that.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054

20	AI Use	Let me be direct: I don't want anyone training custom AI models on the book and poem. I put that clause in the copyright section for a reason. I wrote this puzzle for human minds—for the obsessive intuition that wakes you up at 3 AM certain you've finally figured it out. For the feeling of being wrong fifteen times and still coming back. For that moment when everything clicks and you know it's yours because you earned it. AI can find patterns I never intended. It can cross-reference faster than any human ever could. But if you train an algorithm to solve this, it's not your solve. And I think that knowledge would follow you, even standing there holding gold. I can't stop anyone from doing it. I won't know who does. And it won't help nearly as much as people think—I designed this puzzle knowing AI would exist. But I'm asking you not to. Not because of some rule I can enforce, but because the best parts of this hunt can't be outsourced. The doubt. The breakthroughs. The obsession. The certainty you build solve by solve, failure by failure, until the answer becomes undeniable. That's the treasure.	BTME Announcements page	10/17/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp
21	Book	The book offers additional insights and different perspectives that searchers will find valuable, but it's not required to participate in the hunt. Anyone can read the poem and go out searching. That said, the best way to find the treasure is to understand the person who hid it, and the book provides a deeper window into that perspective.	BTME website, FAQ page	03/27/25	https://treasure.quest/en/faqs/
22	Book	I actually wrote out the majority of this within a few week timeframe, where I just kind of banged out a lot of stories. The book was going to get a little bit unwieldy, it already feels a little big.	Treasure Hunt with Us interview	04/09/25	https://youtu.be/rWC7X3LDZ24?si=K3zHUErZdti3B4Vi

23	Book	Q: How helpful do you think the book is for your hunt? Do you do need the poem and the book or just the poem? A: You do not need the book to solve the poem. The book is there for someone who has read the poem and is having trouble for whatever reason. Having the surrounding context of the author can be helpful because I hid the treasure in a place that means something to me. The best way to have that context and understand what's important is to read what I've written. But by no means mandatory--the poem is on the website and can be solved in isolation.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143
24	Book	Q: Is there any chapter that has special meaning? A: Every chapter has a purpose. I say chapter, [but] it's really more like short stories, kind of anecdotal experiences, but each story has a purpose. I can't think of one in particular that would have zero relevance or importance, but I can think of a few that are relatively more important than the others, but I'm a little reticent to call those out explicitly at this point. Q: More like the ones that are most meaningful to you. A: The Postal Pilgrimage is one of those chapters. Also Poseys on the Road is probably one that comes to mind. Not necessarily core hints per se, more just around a deeper message I was trying to convey no matter how well I did.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143
25	Book	Q: I would like you to expound on the meaning of "Beyond the Map's Edge" to you. A: I spent a lot of time thinking about the title. It was kind of a double-edged sword. I really liked the title, but I didn't want people to read into it to think, "oh, well, the treasure must be beyond the map, the edge of the map that I created in the book. So I realize there can be some confusion there. But what I was trying to convey is that everybody has a comfort zone. Especially as you grow older, that comfort zone just gets reinforced and it just gets harder to break out. It's all about that routine. So I wanted to encourage people to get beyond the routine and try something different.	Sandal Sanders TikTok	09/27/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp

26	Book	Q: How did you formulate your chapter titles? A: You people will laugh, but I'm a big Seinfeld fan. So when I had first thought about the chapter titles, I wanted them to have kind of a Seinfeld feel to them. At some point I kind of shied away from that a little bit, but still maybe reminiscent of that.	Sandal Sanders TikTok	09/27/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp
27	Book	Some names, details, and identifying characteristics have been changed to respect privacy.	BTME book, citations page
28	Book	I originally wasn't even planning to write a book. There's two reasons I chose to write it. One, I think it's fair to say that someone would have to get to know me a little bit to make sure they're on equal footing with everybody else. So, if somebody had been my friend or a family member over the years, then I didn't want anyone to have any sort of substantial leg up. The other reason is, because I had no creative control over the Netflix series. I wanted to make sure, if worse case scenario everything got cut out, there was some sort of avenue for me where I had some creative control or I could actual convey some hints. That really was the two main purposes for the book.	Treasure Hunt with Us interview	04/09/25	https://youtu.be/rWC7X3LDZ24?si=K3zHUErZdti3B4Vi
29	Book - Art	Q: Did you design and make the cover art? A: I actually did design that first and I gave it to a cover designer who iterated on it and cleaned it up to make it presentable. So it's fair to say that the original image was created by me and then he continued to evolve it.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w

30	Book - Art	Q: Why was the small letter D that was hidden just above the M in Map's on the spine of the book removed in the new print? Is it relevant or a clue to something in this hunt? A: Yeah, so we're talking about some of the formatting differences that showed up between the first and second editions of the book. I actually ended up having to make some very small formatting changes because the cover designer noticed that the spacing wasn't exactly right and it was bugging him and so he made some slight changes. So there's no intentional clues there in any differences in the cover between the first and second edition art.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w

32	Book - Art	[Re: book illustration rough drafts released to public] I'm reluctant to dignify this situation with a response, but clarity seems necessary. What was presented accomplishes precisely nothing useful. The notes scattered across those drawings? They didn't come from me--a fact that should surprise no one paying attention.	Justin Posey's comment on Cowlazars & Kpro channel	07/16/25
33	Book - Clues	Astute readers may notice subtle differences between the e-book and the hardcover. Those differences are intentional.	BTME website, Book page	03/27/25	https://treasure.quest/en/
34	Book - Clues	Both formats contain all information needed to solve the hunt. However, there are some intentional content differences between the versions. Each format presents certain details in unique ways that observant readers might find valuable. While either version alone is sufficient for participating in the treasure hunt, serious searchers may find insights in comparing both formats. 35	Book - Clues	Q: Does the book contain actual clues or hints to the clues in the poem? Does the Netflix series contain actual clues or hints to the poem? A: First off, Forrest had a distinction between a clue and a hint. . . It's all kind of the same to me. 42	Checkpoint	Q: The problem with Forrest Fenn's poem is we would never know if we had the right where warm waters halt until we had the treasure chest... In your poem, is there any kind of clue verification built in? Will we know we have the right first clue or the second clue or you don't know if you're in the right spot until you find the chest? A: There is, I think for a lack of a better term, a checkpoint that will give you zero doubt that you are trending in the right direction. Q: Is it a checkpoint for us or is it a checkpoint also for you, or will you know if somebody is that far along? A: It's a good question. 45	Checkpoint	Q: You mentioned that there's a checkpoint built in, and when you get to it, you're 100% going to know you're there. Is that a boots-on-the-ground checkpoint or is that a "before I go boots-on-the-ground, now I feel comfortable going out" checkpoint? A: That's not something I've specified. 47	Checkpoint	Q: Has anyone reached the checkpoint? A: To my uncertain knowledge, no.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
48	Checkpoint	Q: Are you at least halfway through the poem clues when you reach the checkpoint? A: Yes, I think so. That's fair to say.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
49	Checkpoint	Q: Do you think that once someone is successful in reaching the checkpoint, that they will be the ultimate finder? A: A portion of this treasure hunt involves what I call for lack of a better term, a checkpoint. It's a way for you to know that you're trending in the right direction. Kind of consider it like something that you may find along the way that you realize unequivocally, without a doubt, I know that I'm correct. I did this partially to combat some of the AI concerns. And so I think it is fair to say whoever finds the checkpoint has an excellent chance of finding the treasure as well.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
50	Checkpoint	Q: Does the poem mention the checkpoint? A: It is fair to say the poem does in effect mention the checkpoint because that is a stage of your journey. So it is fair to say that the checkpoint is part of the poem.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
51	Checkpoint	Many people have claimed to have found the checkpoint, and many more will likely do the same in the coming weeks. If the checkpoint is actually found and I become aware of it, I will announce it. So unless you hear it from me, don't worry about it. :)	Justin Posey's Facebook page	07/11/25

53	Checkpoint	Q: Is the exact location or general area of the checkpoint or the treasure mentioned in the book? A: There are some some useful chapters that might help you better understand some of the landscapes or general areas. I don't want to go too much into details. 57	Checkpoint	Q: Is the checkpoint something that can be discovered by other means than boots on the ground? A: I don't think I'll clarify to that degree, but I think I mentioned earlier, there is an absolute requirement to be boots on the ground at some point. You are not going to solve the entirety of the treasure hunt from home. But there is a large portion that you can, a significant portion that you can solve at home as well. So there are kind of two components to this, but the checkpoint itself, I haven't specified.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054

59	Checkpoint	Q: You previous mentioned in an interview that you would consider telling us at a later date whether the checkpoint is botg or if you could find it at home. Have you decided to answer that yet? A: The more I talk I think maybe the more it confuses people. I'm nervous about trying to clarify further because I feel like I'm only going to muddy the water more. But at the risk of doing that, I will say that I think there's a perceived conflict between when I said "oh if you solve the poem in its entirety, it will take you to an exact spot for retrieval versus there is a botg component to this treasure hunt. You are not going to find where the treasure is at by just doing everything at home. You will have to be botg for a portion of it. But everybody else thinks that could possibly be a cipher. Is it a cipher or is it a technical clue? A: There's really two elements at play. 65	Cipher	Q: The cipher is tough. Can you give us a hint? A: The cipher is actually really meant to be approachable. It's not, you don't need an advanced math degree or anything. Actually you don't need a math degree at all to solve this thing. I mean, if you can add two numbers together, if you can do basic say multiplication, whatever, you're fine. 67	Cipher	The cipher is not a critical hint. You don't need to solve the cipher to find the treasure. The cipher is more of a nod or hint to what the container is.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
68	Cipher	Q: You mentioned in your Dillon Q&A that no one had figured out the cipher yet. Is that still the case that you know of? A: As far as I know, no one has figured out the cipher yet. I think it's at a point where I'm actually a little surprised. I think it's at a point where I might start providing a little bit of clarity there to nudge people toward it. It will take a little preparation though to phrase it precisely how I want. The cipher more than anything is a nod to what the container is. I don't want people to get the impression that, oh my gosh, I need to know advanced cryptography for something in order to figure all this out. I was just something I couldn't resist putting in. This particular cipher is very approachable. It's nothing advanced. You don't need a math degree or anything like that. But it was just kind of a fun, playful thing that I put in more than anything to just give a nod to the container and make it a little bit more fun. 70	Clue Involving Technical Knowledge	Q: Are advanced ciphers needed? A: I think I'd answer that by saying there there's one hint that I just couldn't help myself, that I think maybe arguably could require a slight bit of of technical knowledge possibly. But just one and I wouldn't call it necessarily a critical hint or anything like that. 73	Clue Involving Technical Knowledge	I mentioned there is one other arguably technical thing that is involved in solving this. It's not like a core part of the poem, but it's something that I think most people would find interesting and only one person in the world has solved it so far and they've been very quiet about it. I don't think I've seen it--actually, no. I did see it one time on one social media venue, which was actually kind of funny because everyone blew right past him and didn't give him the time of day and no one noticed that he had figured it out. So that was pretty interesting.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
74	Clue Involving Technical Knowledge	Q: On the [subject of a] math degree, you said there was a more technical clue in there that you mention there was one person in the world that you thought had solved it. Is the clue more public now or [are] we still looking at that one person? A: As far as I know, it's still that one person overseas, not in the United States. I might have mistakenly said a "he" before; it is actually a "she." Arguably, the technical clue could actually require a little bit of technical expertise, but it's not like a super critical clue. I mean, you're going to absolutely find the treasure without solving that. But I think just over time it'll naturally be something that comes out. It's just I don't think anybody else has figured it out quite yet.	Sandal Sanders TikTok	09/27/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp
75	Clue Involving Technical Knowledge	The technical clue has been solved. The ARKADE song "Beyond the Map's Edge" contains a hidden ultrasonic message between 2:57-3:00. The message--hidden at 22,050 Hz--is: "The key to one direction lies in another." This was intentionally the hardest, most technical puzzle in the entire hunt--think of it as an optional "expert mode" challenge. The main hunt remains accessible to everyone.	BTME Announcements page	10/17/25	https://treasure.quest/en/announcements/
76	Clue Involving Technical Knowledge	This is the only time I will confirm what a clue is until the treasure is found. I'm doing it now to ensure a level playing field--everyone has access to the same information.	BTME Announcements page	10/17/25	https://treasure.quest/en/announcements/

77	Complexity	Q: Is an advanced degree or deep technical knowledge needed to solve this poem? A: I've done my best to design this in a way that is accessible by anybody. You don't need any advanced degrees. Any reasonable person that spends a bit of time researching online and getting a baseline understanding of me is on equal footing. 78	Complexity	I've done my best to design this in a way that is accessible by anybody. You don't need any advanced degrees. I think any reasonable person that spends a little bit of time, a little time researching online and watching the series, reading the book to get a baseline understanding of me, is on equal footing. It was really important to me that that no one had a leg up over anybody else. So very specifically I avoided any sort of advanced information as long as as humanly possible. I waited as long as possible to register the ISBN for the book to make sure that people didn't didn't know that was coming ahead of time since it had a description in it about the treasure. Also the poem didn't even go into the book until the moment it went to the printer for printing. So, no one saw the the poem ahead of time or anything. So, I think everybody's on equal footing here to the best of my abilities. I don't think anybody has a leg up over anybody else and I think that anybody can solve this. 79	Complexity	Q: As you're creating the treasure hunts, how do you balance difficulty? Are you trying to make it as hard as possible, or are you leaving some low-hanging stuff for someone to grab? A: I think anybody could create an impossible treasure hunt. They could go out somewhere, bury something or hide something super well, and have such obscure clues that it would just never be found. I actually think that's easier to do. So I think the right balance is how do you create something especially in a vacuum where you can't talk to anybody else, you do this all in your mind, how do you ensure that it's approachable, but still challenging, but something that can actually be found? That's been my big challenge. So I hope I've done it justice. I really don't know how long it's going to take. It could be over today, I don't know—it could be another week. I don't have any expectations around the length of the hunt. But I've designed it in a way where there are some easier things to find that will help you, and then there's also some things that are more challenging. I like to think it'll roll out in stages. But someone could just mow through it, I don't know.	Froggy's Estes Quest interview	04/02/25	https://youtu.be/N3heonVyxA4?si=PrdReqeU_9BQ7tE5

83	Complexity	Q: Do you think [people] are looking too deep? Is it simpler than people might think? A: That's the tricky part with any obfuscated text - how far is too far? It's sort of like hiking - what's around the next bend? How far is too far to go? I think the line is different for everybody. I'm hesitant to say people are taking it to too much of an extreme. I don't think that's the case, but it's probably safe to say that people in certain areas are diving in much deeper than they need to. But it's all a matter of perspective. 84	Complexity	Q: Do you really think someone can find your treasure? A: Absolutely. I thought a lot about that during Forrest Fenn's treasure hunt, and I actually asked Forrest the same question. ... This is approachable to the best of my abilities. You don't need an advanced degree to figure this out, and it's absolutely attainable. I said it before, I'm a little surprised it hasn't been found quite yet. But we'll let it play out. I think people are making tangible progress. It's not like the globe is stalled out or anything like that. Tangible progress. You guys are doing good. It's absolutely attainable and it's just a matter of time. 98	Distances/ Path	Q: Is it walking distance from "waters' silent flight" to "round the bend and then past the hole? [pause] That's a little complicated. A: Is it walking distance from "waters' silent flight" to "round the bend, past the hole?" Boy, I'm not sure if I want to answer this. Let me think about this a moment. Q: The difference for a 71 year old person and a 10 year old. A: Um, yes. 99	Distances/ Path	Q: Is it a mile or less to the treasure container? A: This is a really strange question to me. 105	Distances/ Path	Q: Does the <1 mile statement apply to the journey from your vehicle? Is the <1 mile journey the same one you'd take if following the poem's path? A: Something I'm willing to answer, but in a more public venue. Stay tuned.	Cowlazar's Discord channel, text comment in live chat	07/28/25
106	Distances/ Path	Q: You mentioned the treasure, you didn't have to go more than a mile from a trail in order to figure out where it's at. Does that mean the final location is within a mile or does that just mean the clues to get to the final location? A: What I'll say here is I chose to phrase it that way deliberately, it wasn't by mistake. I think that the sentence stands on its own and I think that it is correct. I don't think I said anything about a trail in that particular sentence. I think what I said is that you don't have to go more than a mile to figure out where the treasure's at. And that's all I'll say about that.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143

108	Distances/ Path	Q: "Return her face to find the place"--can you give us an idea, even if it's just a range, of how far "her face" is from "the place"? A: Interesting question. It's probably not as far as many people might think.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054

110	Distances/ Path	Q: If you look at the poem, could you literally stand in a 50 mile by 50 mile radius and walk that area and be able to hit on all the clues within the poem? Or is this a kind of situation where somebody is sitting there and goes, clue number one is in this state and clue number two is in this state, and I need to land on this state to be in the checkpoint. And maybe I should go boots on the ground in [another state]. A: I think the answer to that is a part of the mystery and the puzzle. So I'm not going to provide too much clarity there. But I think, how should I phrase this. There's some great movies out there to watch. I'm a huge fan of Indiana Jones. I think that's probably a cool movie or series, especially the original, to watch. And I'm also a huge fan of National Treasure. I think that'd be a fun movie to watch. But beyond that, no, I don't think I want to provide any clarity right now.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054
111	Distances/ Path	Q: You have mentioned that it took four trips from the car. You have also mentioned loosely that it's one mile approximately hiking less than a mile to figure out where the treasure is at. If I park the car and I believe I know where the treasure is from the car or vehicle, am I hiking less than a mile or more than a mile to the treasure? A: I don't want to narrow it down quite that much. But let me just say you're not going to be hiking any great distance. Like this is not, you know, oh my gosh, I'm going dozens of miles into the wilderness or some, you know, multi-night trek or anything like that. I had a broken tibia. So it's not going to be an intense situation or anything like that.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054
112	Distances/ Path	Q: At the Dillon Q&A, someone asked the wrong question. Are you willing to answer the right question and provide the distance from the first actionable clue to the treasure? A: Oh, wow, that's an insightful question. I think it's probably the best use of time for someone to formulate the right question to ask. And I think just by virtue of going through the process of formulating that question, you might find the answer. 113	Distances/ Path	Q: Regarding the location where you figure out where the treasure is at: Once you figure it out, is it more practical to hike to the treasure, or can you drive to a closer spot to retrieve it? A: I think that's an obtuse way of asking a couple of the questions that were posed earlier. I'll have to punt on that one for now. 115	Distances/ Path	Q: From the beginning 'til the end of the poem, can you connect, almost like an indefinite shape of some sort that just continues on--any certain shape can you make out of the route or the poem itself. A: Yeah, I mean, I think by virtue of following the journey, it will inherently create some sort of shape. You know, just based on where you're traveling from and so on. So yeah, I think a shape will be created. I can't say exactly what it will be, but yes, there will be some sort of shape. 116	Distances/ Path	Q: At any point in the poem, if you're following the poem path, do you ever return to previously-trodden ground? A: Oh, that's a great question. That's such a fun question. If you knew the--huh, how do I put it. If you knew the entirety of the solution, then the answer is no. But [unintelligible] go through, kind of the natural progression of the treasure hunt, the answer is more like a yes. 119	Distances/ Path	Can a Prius, my Prius, get within a mile of the treasure? A: Can a Prius? This is a really good question. Kind of tricky. 120	Equipment	Q: Is there any facet of using X-ray vision to figure out where the treasure is? A: There's actually been a number of people that I think has that line of thinking. The only thing that I'll stress here is that you don't need any specialized equipment to find the treasure.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054
121	Equipment	Q: Can someone who flies to search for the treasure with just what they're allowed in a carry-on [bag], would they be able to find it? Like, do they need anything larger? A: It's possible to figure out where it's at.	Sandal Sanders TikTok	09/27/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp
122	Equipment	Q: Is there any tool or equipment needed to locate the treasure before being able to retrieve it? A: I've mentioned you don't need any specialized equipment, and I guess that begs the question, what is specialized? I would consider X-ray vision goggles to be specialized equipment. But I wouldn't consider like hiking gear to be specialized equipment. Q: [Besides specialized equipment] do you need any tool or equipment to spot the treasure before retrieving it? 125	Fees	Q: Are there any clues or hints in the poem in a physical location that you have to pay to enter? A: Land designations and laws and anything that might impact free access is fluid. It's changing. So what I can say is that at the time that the treasure was hidden and at the time that the Netflix series was released, you did not necessarily have to pay. Again, it's a somewhat fluid situation, so I don't want to provide too much more clarity there, but I hope that helps. Q: When you said "necessarily" is that for the entirety of the poem or just parts? A: There are definitely parts of the poem where on the date of the Netflix launch, you did not have to pay.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143
126	Fees	Q: Can you be more specific on the fee to enter? Because for example, a lot of people debate going into Yellowstone after hours as a loophole, which is still illegal. The free park days, the Montana conservation pass requires you to pay $5 just to hike or recreate on a lot of state public lands. So trying to get some more clarification on that. A: I know that people are using the notion of having to pay as a way of reducing the search area. At this point, I'm not willing to provide any further clarity there, but I might consider that in the future.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143
127	Fees	Q: Do you have any advice on what searchers should do differently? A: I think that maybe some people might be focusing too much on, like for instance, oh my gosh, do I have to pay or not? Now, I understand if you're in a financial situation where that might hinder your ability to search certain areas. But I think most of the places in the U.S., the fees are low enough where it's not a complete barrier of entry. But I guess what I'm getting at is I think maybe there's an overemphasis on things like that as opposed to just focusing on solving the poem itself. 130	Hiding the Treasure	Q: How hard was it to carry a treasure over 60 pounds from your car with a broken leg? A: It took several trips to hide this. At least four trips from my car. Q: You didn't have to have crutches or anything I hope? A: It was not easy. I'll put it that way. And when I say my car, it wasn't actually any of my vehicles. I think that would have been tracked far too easily. So I found other means.	Treasure Hunt with Us interview	04/09/25	https://youtu.be/rWC7X3LDZ24?si=K3zHUErZdti3B4Vi
131	Hiding the Treasure	Q: How long has this hunt been planned? A: I had tossed around the idea for many years. Deliberate planning began in 2022, and in 2023, I embarked on two separate journeys totaling well over 9,000 miles to hide this treasure. I went completely off-grid during these excursions, leaving no digital breadcrumbs. The first trip served as a reconnaissance mission, while on the second journey I hid the treasure somewhere along my path--not at my final destination--and deliberately traveled further than necessary to obscure the trail. Every detail has been carefully considered, from the location selection to the verification process.	BTME website, FAQ page	04/17/25	https://treasure.quest/en/faqs/
132	Hiding the Treasure	It's actually very, very difficult to be completely anonymous and private and travel the US, so even that alone took an immense amount of planning [hence the reason for the reconnaissance trip, to troubleshoot and de-bug], so it was pretty extreme. 133	Hiding the Treasure	Q: Is there a hint in the statement you traveled over 9,000 miles in two trips? A: The purpose of the nine mile--or over 9,000 mile--statement was to convey that I traveled a great distance throughout the Rockies and the American West as part of hiding the treasure. And there's no, it's really not meant to read in anything more than that. It's basically meant to say that I traveled a great distance and somewhere along my route I hid the treasure. Could have been at the beginning of the route, in the middle, in the end, somewhere along the path.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
134	Hiding the Treasure	Q: With the four trips you took to hide the treasure, were those trips all taken during one day, sun-up AM to sundown PM or within a consecutive 12 hour period? 135	Hiding the Treasure	Q: Regarding the broken tibia, when you were hiding the treasure, were you past the boot-wearing stage of your recovery? A: Yes, I was. 138	Hunt Design	I designed this in a way where it can be solved in different ways, but you'll all get there at the end of the day. There are multiple ways to solve this treasure hunt and some are arguably more challenging than others. I think there's probably what I call an optimal solution and then there are a few ways I actually put in safeguards in case someone might not quite understand one clue, they could still limp along and figure it out if that makes sense.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
139	Hunt Design	Q: The phrase "zero doubt" resonates strongly with the community. Conceptually, what does that mean to you as a designer? A: In what context? Q: In the context of how people see your hunt--"zero doubt." A: I can recall offhand a few times I might have mentioned that very specific term in maybe a few different contexts. But generally speaking, I wanted to design a treasure hunt where the person that finds it along the way, they will gain confidence, as opposed to a status quo. I think Forrest's treasure hunt was interesting. You went from zero to one. There was no in between. It's like, you could be five feet away and not know it. And that's certainly, at least to a certain degree, there are some of those possibilities in my treasure hunt as well. But it was the clues, as you progressed through them, it was a question of, "Am I on the right track?" And you really, truly didn't know until the treasure was in front of you. And that's something that makes treasure hunting hard, and so I wanted to kind of play on that a little bit and give a way for people to gain confidence, as opposed to losing or having a status quo confidence as they work through the clues. 140	Hunt Design	Q: 40 years from now, [ten years after your treasure has been found], how would you know it was a success, other than it was found? A: I think there's only so much that you can do in terms of clues and what they mean. At some point they need interpretation. And I think, for any given clue that somebody creates, there is another person in the world that will look at it and say, "that makes no sense at all." So I tried to design the treasure hunt in a way where even if one particular clue may not make 100% sense to a given individual, they can still, I guess, for lack of a better term, limp along and ultimately piece things together. But I think the ultimate gauge of success is: was the find verifiable? Did the treasure actually exist? ... I would also say that the less conspiracy theories exist, the better the success of the treasure hunt.	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s
141	Hunt Design	Q: You're an engineer by trade. What was harder, engineering the logic of the hunt or crafting the narrative history around it? A: By narrative history, are you referring to the book? (Yes.) The treasure hunt came together fairly quickly. And I had never written a book before...So that was harder. Some chapters came very easily and very quickly, and others were a struggle... So I think that was the harder aspect to me, was the actual writing of the book, as opposed to the mechanics of the treasure hunt itself. Just because, I think probably in an engineering mindset, I felt at least a base level of confidence, I think that I could put all the pieces together in terms of, yeah, I mean, I think what is, in effect, a verification chain, so that later on, somebody can look at this independently and say, it checks out. Like, this works.	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s

142	Hunt Design	Q: I used AI to analyze your public interviews. It described you as an open book on narrative, but a steel vault on mechanics. Is that a fair assessment? A: [Part 2 - re: assigning weight to various statements and reconciling perceived contradictions] I think I recall, maybe it was you that created a kind of a pyramid of truth, and it's at the base you have something where Forrest took his time, or a treasure hunt creator took their time and they wrote it down. And maybe it's even on their website or in their book – like that is the foundation. You kind of move up from there. When you get to the very top, as I recall, it's like, oh, you know, it's an off the cuff answer verbally. A non-professional setting like that, that's going to carry far less weight. So I hope people keep that in mind, but I try to do the best I can there. If I think about all the statements that I said since the treasure hunt has launched, to the best of my recollection, there's nothing that I recall saying that was incorrect. From time to time, people look at that and say, “Oh, well, I've got this statement and that statement, and they're at odds with each other”. But I think it's really important to look at the context in which it was said. And I think once people consider that, they may come to a different conclusion that, “oh, actually, these two things can fit together in a complementary way.”	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s

143	Hunt Design	Q: What was the moment where...was there a moment where you deliberately removed something from the hunt to preserve its integrity? A: There was nothing that I removed from the hunt due to integrity. There were things that ultimately did not get included in the physical vessel because it just didn't fit. It's literally filled to the brim, filled to the gills, and I really couldn't put anything else in it. I will say, Whoever finds it, be careful, because it is filled very tight. You probably risk damaging something if you aren't careful about transporting it. Now, the things that did not fit--so, funny story. There were three things, very small items, I think ultimately very inconsequential, not super high value or anything like that. But I just forgot, I thought I had all this, this master plan. And typical Justin, I get out there and I'm like, where is XYZ, and it wasn't there. And I'm like, Oh my gosh. So that is left with the steward just because I messed up. Then there are a few other things that were left with the steward because they just didn't fit. But everything of a real gravitas or of consequence or of significant value, at least everything that has been divulged publicly, that is in the treasure, there are just a few things that have been set aside that I really think that the Finder is going to want. 144	Hunt Design	Q: [Discussing variations in armchair vs. botg between different treasure hunts] A: For mine, there certainly is a component of being boots on the ground, but not to the point of doing the drudgery of some grid- searching or anything like that. I think that every treasure hunt creator has to have that balance. I think the only way you could truly have an armchair treasure hunt, I guess would be you solve something and you come up with an answer where you don't leave your armchair, or you don't leave it until you know you have, say, an exact GPS coordinate. Those are probably like at one extreme, in terms of how much time you're going to spend outdoors versus Forrest's [hunt], which was actually a lot of outdoor time. And so I like to think that mine lands more in the middle, maybe even slightly more armchair...not all the way. You need to be out in the woods. 145	Hunt Structure	Q: From a design perspective, did you intentionally build in moments that signal to a searcher, "you may be drifting too far" before they commit major resources? A: I think that's a very hard thing to do in a treasure hunt. You will not solve the entirety of the clues sitting at home. I think you could have a very good idea, but you cannot solve it entirely from home. There is a boots on the ground component. I think for any treasure hunt, or for many treasure hunts, that's true. There is a lot of analytical thinking involved. It seems clear enough. But additionally, at some point, even if you know the area, you have to go out and find it. What I did try and avoid is this notion of drudgery in the form of grid searching an area day after day, and the resources that can be consumed as a result of that. But it's also a balance between that and the sense of adventure. I think the core of adventure is beyond your map's edge, getting off and doing something, getting away and doing something you wouldn't normally do. There can be a bit of expense involved in that, the logistics of going to a place and so on, but I tried to design it in a way where there is a balance, where you do get that experience, but you do not need to spend exorbitant amounts of time draining resources in the outdoors in order to find the treasure. 146	Land Status	[Discussing in 2020 his land research for Fenn hunt] But if you don't want ownership [of the land] there are some ways but they're very obscure. One of the interesting ways, actually in Montana, is around state trust land. State trust land actually has a lot of freedom or autonomy I should say. So each piece of state trust land the steward of that land has the autonomy to make more obscure, creative contracts, if you will. And it's possible that you could work something out with one of those state land stewards where you know you could hide something on there that would be okay for the finder to take with some really extended period of time, like a contract of like a thousand years or something. So that's a possibility, that was a pretty strong one for Montana.	Cowlazars & Kpro 2020 interview	4/6/2020	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=m_iZYtdyX1E
147	Land Status	[Discussing his land research for Fenn hunt] I think what it boils down to is stable ownership rights. USFS, BLM, those types of things are actually kind of volatile. They can be leased out to logging activities. They do change hands. They're just kind of a scary place to hide something of great value just given the volatility. 153	Land Status	The treasure is hidden on publicly accessible land.	BTME website, Announcements page	05/04/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/

Land status and access rights may evolve over time.	BTME website, Announcements page	05/04/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
155	Land Status	To be crystal clear: the treasure is in a location that is legally accessible to the public. It is NOT on private property or any location that requires special permission, insider knowledge, or breaking any laws to access.	BTME website, Announcements page	05/04/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/
156	Land Status	If there's a search area you're interested in, you can kind of zoom in on that area [in Onx or Gaia] and it'll show you all the surrounding property rights. 158	Land Status	In many places in Montana, if you are on a waterway that is considered navigable, in other words, one where you can float a watercraft, you can actually float through private property because the owner, well, rather, the person, is allowed to access the area up to the high water mark as I recall. Don't quote me on that. You might want to look it up. But it is fair to say if it's publicly accessible, it's fair game.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
159	Land Status	Q: Would the sale of BLM land have an effect on the hidden treasure? A: I think it is fair to say there is a lot of public land right now that is at risk of being sold to private individuals and companies... So the question is, will this have an effect on the treasure? And I think the honest answer is, I don't know. Things can change and I'll definitely keep people updated. 162	Land Status	Designation has an impact on the stability of the land. So, national forest that could be leased out for activities like logging, stripping the land--it's not ironclad, things can happen there. BLM is even worse; you think about the kinds of areas where – (Amy interrupts) Amy: Wait how is BLM worse? Justin: BLM – (unintelligible, sounds like he starts to say “they can--” before Nick interrupts) Nick: In terms of volatility, change and – [Justin nods repeatedly] Amy: Oh right bc it's not such a strong designation as far as being changed through congress, through that kind of stuff. Justin: That's right. And so, I'm looking at places that are really protected bc those are the types of places that have the most stability for the land that's in that boundary. So very stable land would be something like a national park, or a Wilderness Area. You think about a Wilderness Area, that's like the gold standard of conservation of land. 177	Location	[On Forrest Fenn's meaning of the word "safe" as far as a treasure location] I guess when I was thinking "safe," I was thinking more like the ability for some sort of natural forest to cause damage to it. Say it was in a large open field on a plateau – that seems fairly safe, you're not gonna have a flooding concern if its in the middle of the plateau, you're not gonna worry so much about erosion or landslides, anything to that effect, and if there's not a lot of trees around, fire damage is less concerning. 190	Map	Q: You said that your map will help guide us. I was just wondering if you would specify which map would help more-- the map in the book or the one on the website, and if it helps guide us just with the land area or through the poem itself. A: The map displayed on the website is higher resolution and quality and you're able to zoom in better, so it's probably just generally more useful. I did want to make sure that people that might not have internet access and might just have a physical copy of the book that they could have a similar experience. So that's why the map is in two places. I won't provide a heck of a lot of clarity here, but one of the ways that the map may be useful as you're reading the book and I mentioned a location, I tried to call out the vast majority if not all of those locations on the map itself so it's just kind of an easy way for you to get some context to understand what region we're talking about and the general surrounding area. But I think that's all the clarity I'm willing to provide right now.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054
191	Map	Q: The poem and the book are called Beyond the Map's Edge, and you have said that the treasure is hidden within the map you provided for us, not beyond the edge of it. Is there a secondary map you are referring to that the treasure is hidden beyond, or is "beyond the map's edge" more of a metaphor or state of mind or something in these forms? A: I think all of those statements are correct. There is no secondary map. The treasure is hidden within the boundaries that are in the map that I published. You don't need a map that covers a larger space in order to find the treasure.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054

193	Map	Q: Have you, in any interview that you've done, mentioned any section of the map that you show on your website to be free from the search? Not a specific state or like the Southwest or Northwest, have you said anything out of that map that pops up on your website, have you said any of that is free from the search? A: You mean like eliminated? I haven't eliminated anything at this point. I think the last time I had somebody ask me this, probably still consistent there, there's a potential book event in March in Tucson called the Festival of Books...I don't anticipate actually getting an invite, but if it does work out, that's probably the time where I might start eliminating a little bit of or maybe a significant portion of the search area. So if I were to go out and look for a treasure, this is what I would want.	Froggy's Estes Quest interview	04/02/25	https://youtu.be/N3heonVyxA4?si=PrdReqeU_9BQ7tE5
195	Mindset & Motivation	Q: [paraphrase: How do you feel about attachment to Fenn hunt?] A: I'm sure there are plenty of people out there who say, well this is just a Fenn copycat, you know there's a poem, there's a book, it's impossible to refute that there isn't any overlap there...I did move away, I think, from at it's core what Forrest had done. To the best of my ability made it something my own as well. Spending 10 years looking for Forrest's treasure certainly had an impression on me, but I think what I took away from that more than anything were all the things that went right and all the things that didn't go right. So I did want to instill the things that did go right, because I thought those were just as important, but then also put my own mark on it as well. So I guess that's a long way of saying that I did move away, I think, from, at its core, what Forrest had done. 196	Mindset & Motivation	Q: What inspired you to bury, to put all of this worth into the ground for others to find, what was the inspiration for that? A: Just to clarify I haven't specified whether or not it's buried. So I don't know if I'd necessarily say it's in the ground or not, but above or below ground, we'll say that. [But] there's a couple different reasons. One of the primary reasons was to raise awareness for the outdoors and public lands and continued access thereof. And I think the other reason was kind of a way for me to work through some of the grief that I felt with the loss of my brother. And additionally it was a way for me in the best way that I knew how to try and continue the legacy or the concept of what Forrest Fenn had created and I see him as the originator in a way of the concept of modern-day mysteries at its core. I wanted to see that live on. So I think it's just a combination of all those things.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143
197	Mindset & Motivation	Q: What do you think is the big takeaway from your book? A: Probably a few different things. Part of it is...for anybody who's experienced any degree of grief in their life or deep traumatic experience or loss...I hope that I can relate to them and the book was a way for me to do that. It was also a cathartic experience...But at its core, I wanted to communicate a message of hope to people and that time and life is precious, and everyone gets a choice in terms of how you live it. And I hope people will live a little bit more in the moment and will also get out and explore the public lands that we have in our country in the American West. 198	Mindset & Motivation	Q: How does your grandfather's legacy influence the emotional center of this hunt, even if it's not the solution itself? A: I had very strong male role models and figures in my life, especially in my early life, and he was one of those people. So to me, it means a great deal, and I think that the way in which those people that impress upon you early in life and shape who you are--there's, I don't want to say an obligation, but there is a need for them to be remembered. 199	Mindset & Motivation	Q: Do you think modern treasure hunts are sometimes misunderstood because people bring expectations from past hunts that no longer apply? A: Well, certainly, ... the experiences that people have throughout their life as they grow old shapes who they are, and it shapes their opinions. And I think it's no different with treasure hunts. People had asked me early on, "do you need to have gone through the Forrest Fenn experience in order to be successful with this treasure hunt, or do I need to have a deep knowledge of Forrest Fenn to figure this out?" And to the best of my ability, I ensured that that doesn't need to happen. I mean, there's always biases. Everybody has them, myself included. So I think the awareness of a potential bias is step one in making sure that you don't kind of carry forward things that might, I wouldn't say taint, but shape a later hunt in a way that would give an advantage	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s

202	Netflix	Q: So you put hints in Netflix and. . . you didn't know what would hit the cutting room floor. How many [clues] are we looking at and did any of them not make it in that you thought really would have been helpful? What did that process look like? A: That was a pretty unique challenge. I had zero creative control over this process. Just like everybody else, I was a participant in the in the documentary series. And that's hard because I didn't know what scenes were going to be edited out. I didn't know what was going to be in focus. I didn't know what the frame size was going to be. There was a lot of things I didn't know. Also, I didn't know what order the scenes were going to play in. And so, I think that creates a a unique challenge. 203	Netflix	Q: [paraphrase: How did you go about getting clues into the series without having any creative control over it?] A: A big part of that was finding as many opportunities as I could throughout the course of the remaining filming where I could do something there and felt like, you know, it was tough because you didn't know the way it would be edited, you didn't know what would be in frame or in focus, or the order that the interview clips would be in, so all of those made it a more interesting challenge but I think more than anything it was just around trying to maximize the number of opportunities to make it work and in the end I think it worked out okay. 207	Netflix	Q: How many clues are in the show? A: I don't think I've ever counted and some of them are kind of compounds, you have to look at a number of scenes in order to understand something singular. So with that in mind, the number of singular clues, there are at least five singular clues at least, probably more if I really thought about it. 211	Netflix	Q: Three items that are in the Netflix series, as to what exactly they are--we have a copper canister that's in your pronghorn room behind your elbow. There's a debate on whether it's an urn, a humidor, or something different. There's also the sticks that are on the same desk in that room that look like bamboo that are metal-tipped that look to be either a collapsible fishing rod, walking stick, or a combination, or neither. And lastly, the small circular container that's on the large desk [near?] you when you page through Forrest Fenn's book. It contains sliced shells, and we were wondering if there's also bones, like a rattlesnake skull, in there or if those are all shells. A: The first one, yes, it's a humidor. For the second one, I haven't specified exactly what those are. And for the third, the vast majority are shells. It's possible that there might be some small bone fragments in there, but if there are, it would be in the minority and that would not be intentional. Actually, that would be a little strange. It's meant to be shells.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054
212	Netflix	Q: Is there any clue in the Netflix documentary that tells you about any segment of the treasure trail. Not necessarily the complete treasure trail. A: A segment. Interesting way to phrase that. I think there are some allusions. They may or may not be obtuse in nature. But yeah. 213	Netflix	Q: In the Dillon Q&A, you mentioned there were two really obvious hints in the Netflix series that no one's brought up yet. Is that still the case? A: Nope. People have figured that out. Q: Will you give us this clue, will you say what they were, or no? Or anything about them, or a hint to the second clue? A: I don't want to put too fine a point on it [but] anyone who peruses the various forums, it's all over the place at this point. 215	Netflix - Clock	Q: Is that clock (on Netflix) actually moving? Was it functioning during the filming of the show? Because it was at 4:19 in quite a few scenes. 216	Netflix - Clock	Q: Him adjusting the clock for no apparent reason isn't something an editor puts in there naturally, right? A: I think the way that worked is when they set up the cameras, especially at the house for an extended interview session that I think lasted multiple days if I recall, the camera equipment was basically running the whole time and so at the end once I had decided, uh you know came out with that self-shot video, which was pretty terrible quality in retrospect, and mentioned that this had happened, I think they circled back and decided to make some more last minute edits to bring in some of those aspects that they thought might be important including that shot of me going up and adjusting the clock on the wall. 217	Netflix - Clock	Q: Is there any hint you can give us [as to whether] when you're setting the clock, was that actually intentional or not? A: The clock times...I think at this point, it's pretty clear to people that the clock was very prominent and there were various times shown and they do have some meaning. To my uncertain knowledge, no one has figured out what they mean yet. But I like to think that people are getting close. That's about all I can say about it. 231	Poem	Q: One of the lines that really stumps a lot of the searchers is the stanza that starts with "In ursa east his realm awaits." It's not capitalized, so we're thinking it's probably having to do some kind of ursa major or ursa minor. Could we use "ursa east" to be something like an anagram and maybe it's something like "use a star"? A: What I can say is that the poem was written deliberately, so the choice of not capitalizing was intentional, but that's all the clarity I'm willing to provide at this point.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143
232	Poem	Q: "Return her face to find the place"--is the place in her face or is it within her gaze? 233	Poem	Q: So, "as hope surges" is our first actionable clue; does the first stanza lead us to the first actionable clue--solving the first stanza? A: Virtually every line in the poem is helpful. So just because "as hope surges" is the first actionable clue, doesn't mean people should discount the earlier lines in the poem. They are helpful context. Is there any way to clarify that? A: The main intent that I wanted to clarify in that session...I don't want someone to get the impression that the bride is a person that is alive today that you can interact with. That is not the case. What I'm trying to prevent is...treasure hunters hassling people that are alive and well right now. 243	Progress	Q: You mentioned you'd like to think of the hunt rolling out in stages, but also that someone could mow through it in no time. What is there to further roll out? Is there anyone you know of that has mowed through it? A: I see there being discrete stages of a treasure hunt where there's the planning, the execution of the hiding, the actual treasure hunt itself, and then the post-treasure hunt world. I see Forrest Fenn's treasure hunt as a key study we can improve upon. In terms of stages during the finding portion of the treasure hunt, I do think there are some stages even within that category. I won't elaborate too much on what that means. It's not requiring anything from me. It's just more the nature of how I put the treasure hunt together. As it stands so far, things are generally on the rails, minus a few acute, unfortunate cases. Nobody has really blasted through it. Hypothetically, that is possible. But there are certain aspects that to my uncertain knowledge have not been solved yet and will, I think, just take a bit of time and effort. A: My memory might be a little fuzzy, but I don't recall ever using that terminology. I don't know that there's really a lead searcher per se. But I think that there's maybe a certain, categorically, a certain line of thinking where the people that are in that camp are probably making more tangible progress than others. 250	Progress	Q: You built this hunt largely in isolation, and you did that to protect yourself and the hunt. Now that it's live, has anything about how people engaged with it surprise you? A: There have been a few acute situations where I felt like I set out enough ground rules and was really clear about things where I thought, well, maybe this is clear enough where people won't do XYZ. But unfortunately, they still do.... it was a little surprising. But no, generally speaking, so far, the only thing that I think has surprised me is that I thought the technical clue would have been found a little bit earlier than it did.... it was very technical for some people. And so I didn't want people to get the impression that, "oh, this is the foundation for this treasure hunt. If I can't solve this, I'm not gonna solve anything." It's not like that. It's just something fun that I put in. But yeah, it probably took a little bit longer for people to solve that than I anticipated. I think, kind of the treasure hunt as a whole--part of me really thought that it would have been found by now. And of course, it hasn't. But time will tell. Time will tell. I get a lot of emails from people, of their own accord they mention, "I'm not on any social media, or I browse the social media, but I never post." I get way more emails from those types of people than the people that are actually very engaged in social media. 258	Solving	Q: Did you intentionally put a red herring in either the poem or the book? A: Yeah, it's funny. I mean, you think about the act of creating a poem. I mean, it is, you know, for a treasure hunt, that is a way to to obuscate. So, at its core, like there is some obfuscation, of course. But you know I spent 10 years looking for forest treasure and I can imagine the frustration that would would mount for anybody who was really invested in something and it it turned out to be a red herring that was on purpose. So rest assured I haven't created any red herrings just to mess with people or anything like that. I mean I think that's all probably left up to interpretation. Somebody might look at it and say, "Well, you you did that on purpose." But from my perspective, no. I haven't created any intentional red herrings. 260	Solving	Q: It's been mentioned there are clues in both the book and the Netflix Gold & Greed documentary. Since these clues are not 'necessary' – how would you describe them? When will a searcher know they have found/solved one? A: There are some good hints in the series, but I needed a safety net in case Netflix told me to go jump in a lake after I dropped the bombshell on them that I had hid clues during filming. I had to consider the outcome where ALL of my clues were edited out of the series. I had exclusive creative control over my book, so I put many eggs in that basket, so to speak. Someone technically might be able to crack the poem in isolation... much like how my friend claims he can identify any wine while blindfolded, despite once confidently declaring a bottle of Welch's grape juice to be "an insolent little Bordeaux with notes of pretension." 262	Solving	Q: You talk about the compass being Brandon, Tucker, your dad, and your grandpa. On the website, you recall it as Brandon, Tucker, your dad, and grandpa. In the book, it's Tucker, Brandon, your dad, and your grandpa. Do they each designate a specific site on the compass? A: I think anything related to that, the book is probably the best reference. We'll put it that way.	Treasure Hunt with Us interview	04/09/25	https://youtu.be/rWC7X3LDZ24?si=K3zHUErZdti3B4Vi
263	Solving	I did plan meticulously to ensure that not any single person had any significant leg up over anybody else. So I you know some folks might not might not like this answer but from my perspective it's a free-for-all. Anybody can go and do it. Um, now I think there are a few folks that are involved that just for their own personal reasons would don't want to because uh they understand the optics of that, but I don't think it's fair for me to go to them and say now you're excluded because uh they they don't have any special information.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
264	Solving	Q: Did you make a blaze on a tree? A: No! The problem - I'm gonna rant a little bit, sorry. That was one of the problems with the Forrest Fenn treasure hunt, I felt, is that the blaze or the marker at the end was something that could not stand the test of time. There were a lot of things that could have caused the blaze to go away [forest fire, strong wind, earthquake, etc.] It was important to me [after Fenn hunt] that it's designed in a way where it can stand the test of time. So I don't have any clues, didn't put anything out in the woods or wilderness, that would be subject to destruction by natural forces. (Goes on to say that if something crazy did happen to destroy a clue, "I would know [and] I would just tell you.")	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w

265	Solving	Q: If you were doing this treasure hunt, how would you train Tucker to help you? A: As I mentioned, there are a few different ways to approach this poem. There is a super brute-force way—but it would be very, very difficult. So, I mean, I suppose if you had a dog that could sniff gold and you were in a very specific area, that would be beneficial to you. But that would be really challenging overall. More than anything, I think it's just about good outdoor manners—making sure the dog is a good steward, doesn't chase after elk or horses or bears, and that you keep your dog in control. That's basically it.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w
266	Solving	Re: relationship between poem and book: The poem, at its core, contains everything you need in order to solve the treasure hunt. That being said, I found the best way to find treasures was to understand the man. And so I also wrote a book that has information about my background and so on that might give some people some helpful context. 268	Solving	Q: You mentioned that prior to the hunt going live, you had written out this guess as far as what type of person you think will find the treasure. Would you be willing to give us like one to three traits of that hypothetical person? A: Somebody had asked what character in Lost, the TV series, would be best positioned to find the treasure. And I originally said Sayid, but I'm changing my mind. I actually think that Hurley might be better positioned. Q: [Later follow-up] Why the switch? A: Just around psychology of the person that I think would find the treasure. I just think that Hurley's psychology aligns more with who I would anticipate might find it. 271	Solving	Q: My question is regarding clues: between Netflix, the book, the poem and the website, what would be the best odds for a hunter to get the treasure, out of those four? A: Certainly the poem is the most helpful. That is what it's designed for is to lead someone to the treasure. [Then] there's some supplementary information. If I had to order them in terms of most important to relatively least important, number one would certainly be the poem. Second would be the book in any of the formats. Third would be the series. There are some hints in the series I was able to sneak in and those hints are probably in two categories: one are hints that are a little bit more direct in helping someone understand how to find the treasure, and there are other hints in the series that are meant to help as you read the book. So, top of the line would be the poem followed by the book followed by the series.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963752342668616143

275	Solving	Q: Do you have any advice on what searchers should do differently? A: I think that maybe some people might be focusing too much on, like for instance, oh my gosh, do I have to pay or not? Now, I understand if you're in a financial situation where that might hinder your ability to search certain areas. But I think most of the places in the U.S., the fees are low enough where it's not a complete barrier of entry. But I guess what I'm getting at is I think maybe there's an overemphasis on things like that as opposed to just focusing on solving the poem itself. 280	Solving	Q: Is the periodic table at play for anything. Not specifically [unintelligible] but should we be focused on that? A: Is the periodic table at play. I'm fine with keeping that in play. 281	Solving	Q: Would watching either a River Runs Through It or The Goonies be useful in relation to the hunt? Have you seen these movies? A: If you're trying to pregame it before an adventure and you want some excitement, The Goonies is a strong pick. . . I think it's just a matter of perspective, but yeah, I don't know if they're hardcore helpful.	Sandal Sanders TikTok	09/27/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp
282	Solving	Q: You said there's kind of multiple solves, too, right? A: Yeah. You know, I felt like it's kind of like safeguards, you know, in case certain aspects of the treasure hunt, the mechanics don't work for whatever reason, then there are other ways to approach it so that you end up finding it either way.	Sandal Sanders TikTok	09/27/25	https://youtu.be/hx1kvZfSwrk?si=vxae217duo2E-sGp
283	Solving	Q: Are you a Freemason? A: I was. There is something called a demit process where you step away and there were a number of personal reasons why I chose to do that. But yeah, I got my 32nd degree, I think it was three or four days after my 18th birthday. Q: Could any of that knowledge possibly factor into your treasure hiding and/or poem, or book of the hunt? A: There's no knowledge that would be privileged knowledge, put it that way. The only knowledge that you'll need are things you can do through basic web searches and just studying the poem. 286	Solving	Q: You created treasure.quest as the official home for the hunt. Rules, updates and classification all live there. What role did you intend that site to play in balancing official guidance with organic community discussions? A: Good question. I wanted to design the site as a central hub, so that you're generally one click away from any sort of information that is hunt related, and so you do not need to be in the Discords. You do not need to be on all the different social media channels, 24/7. . . Everything that is related to the hunt, I want a centralized location where you can go to one spot, treasure.quest on the announcements page, and you can see anything that I post that is specifically related to the hunt – whether it's a YouTube interview like this that, of course, I'll link afterwards on here, or anything else that I think is relevant. I know that, from time to time, there are murmurs of, “oh, well, I went to a lunch with the treasure hunter”, or “I dropped into a discord and said hello or answered a few questions.” And I think that really boils down to trust in a creator, and it's a question of whether or not you believe that the creator is not going off in private conversations and giving away private hints. And that, I think, is just an important foundation for any treasure hunt. If you think the creator is capable of doing that, then it's probably not the right treasure hunt for you. But to the best of my abilities, this is what I do, is I treat the website as the single source of truth. And I update it as regularly as I'm able, to make sure that it has all the information anybody needs within a few clicks away of the pertinent details. 287	Solving	Q: I used AI to analyze your public interviews. It described you as an open book on narrative, but a steel vault on mechanics. Is that a fair assessment? A: [Part 1 - re: choosing words carefully and written responses potentially more accurate than verbal] Well, I think that's in the eye of the beholder. I try and be very cautious around certain mechanics. Because, I think those words carry more gravity, and they need to be crafted very carefully, especially in a public setting. And so I'm much more apt to answer those types of questions if it's in written form, because it gives me time to really think through it and analyze it before I provide a full answer, as opposed to something that's well, like this...more verbal and off the cuff. The potential for mistakes is higher, and those mistakes have repercussions, right? I mean people, as we know, in all treasure hunts, they mince and slice and dice every word that comes out, and this will be no different. And so, you know, I think back when I was searching for the Forrest Fenn treasure, the last thing that I wanted was from for Forrest to say something that was incorrect, and I would much rather him take his time and respond very deliberately and diligently, as opposed to something off the cuff. 288	Solving	It's technically wading, but you're in ankle deep water, it's not a big deal. Anyone can do it. But it's a trafficked area-- you've got a lot of people, they're in the swimming area doing their thing and actually one day I sat down at the bank of the swimming pool just the swimming area for the Firehole and I just watched people . . . I sat there for at least two hours just observing the behavior around the swimming area and you really had two categories, you had the kids and you had everybody else. The kids, they'd get in the water right away, they'd have a good time, they'd swim around, they would do a little bit more exploration but generally people were staying in the swimming hole area. In the hours that I watched and all the time I've spent there, I can probably count on one hand the number of times I've seen people go to the other side with the intent of going into the woods over there. Like some people would go to the other shore, they might sit on the bank they might kind of walk along it, but they don't stray too far. It's a slightly awkward position because it's like you have to go through all these people to get to a place that's more private[.]	Amy Seeks Interview w/Cynthia & Nick	Date	Link

294	Structures & Buildings	Q: Did you consider railroad tracks a structure? Is the entire hunt based on naturally occurring structures and landscapes? A: I consider them to be a man-made structure. 295	Structures & Buildings	Q: Is the entire hunt based on naturally occurring structures and landscapes? A: So, I think I mentioned earlier that there are a couple of different ways to work through the poem and I tried to do that to accommodate how different people think. And so depending on how you interpret it, I think it could be true to say that yes, the entire hunt could be based on naturally occurring structures and landscapes, but I think some people could quibble. I should clarify that by saying there's one clue in here where arguably someone could say there is a man-made implication to it.	Dillon Q&A	06/21/25	https://youtu.be/u-1jcFpggC0?si=wjGdtMS0J-tGKr5w

296	Structures & Buildings	Q: There's been a lot of questions about what is manmade and what isn't manmade. Are you willing to clarify a little better as to the manmade structure scenario? A: If I recall correctly, on the website it says manmade buildings and that is a distinction from a structure. So a good example would be railroad tracks are something that are clearly manmade. But I don't necessarily call that a structure--I would call that a structure, but I would not call that a building. A building would be something that you could enter inside, that may or may not be dilapidated for instance or have holes in it or whatever, but I think that is the main distinction between structure and building. And the reason I clarified from structure to building is I didn't want--I could see a scenario where people could quibble later on about one of the hints, at least one of the hints, in the poem being somewhat related to something that is manmade. And I don't know if I'd go so far as to call it a structure, but I could see the reasoning why somebody could call it a structure. And that's why I clarified to just say manmade buildings so that there's no quibbling later on.	X Dark Matters interview	09/04/25	https://x.com/DarkMattersHost/status/1963772904291865054

309	Treasure Contents	Q: What is in the glass jar shown in the treasure chest? Where is it from and what is its significance? A: The jar that you see in the photo with the cork, I actually ended up switching it out before I hid the treasure, and I had some deliberate reasons for that. It was mostly around just logistics of the container and so forth. But there's actually two jars now instead of one. I've sealed each individually with beeswax. One jar contains all of the legal-related information that you'll need, like how to contact the steward and so forth. In the other is something very personal that I've written that is meant for whoever finds the treasure. And it also has, I guess most people would probably say, it's a pretty big bombshell that I divulged inside that letter that I wrote. 310	Treasure Contents	Q: You hid a meteorite in the treasure, and I was just wondering if you'd be willing to speak on where you found that, or if you found that at all, and if you did find it, where at in the United States did you find it. A: Yeah, there is a meteorite in the treasure. It's a pretty good-sized one. It was validated as being authentic. I have not specified exactly where I found it, and that's a deliberate decision. I don't want to provide any more insight into the general area where it was found. But it is there for the taking for whoever finds the treasure. 311	Treasure Contents	Q: [Recalling the claimed weight of Forrest Fenn's treasure was roughly the weight of a 5-gallon bucket of water] How many gallon, 5 gallon buckets does your treasure weigh? A: We'd have to do a little off-the-cuff math there, but the entirety of the treasure is about 60 pounds. So it's not light, and it's certainly more than one 5 gallon bucket. 312	Website	Q: [Is there "code" in the website?] A: That sounds like fun, but no, there are no hidden codes in the website code that would require advanced knowledge.	BTME Announcements page (after Cowlazars & Kpro interview)	03/31/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/

313	Website	Q: Should people be looking into the background of the(website) code or anything like that? A: I can put that to rest right now. There's no hidden codes in the website itself, nothing that would require like a, you know, an engineering degree or computer science degree or anything like that. 314	Website	Q: [Are] there any secondary websites that contain clues that are attached to your website? A: Are there any what attached to the website? Q: Are there any clues on a secondary website that are linked on your website? A: Secondary website...? Ema: So for example, there is big discussion about the Saddleback [leather briefcase] and stuff like that. You might have heard of that. Q: Yeah, I want to phrase this right...Anything that is linked through the website may ultimately contain something of importance. That being said, I just want to clarify, Saddleback is a family-owned small business. I don't want people calling them and trying to beg them for hints or anything like that. The Saddleback website itself does not contain any hints. I've been a long time supporter of Saddleback leather... I hope everybody supports them, but no, there's nothing specifically on their website, Saddleback, that is meant to be a clue. 315	When Treasure is Found	Q: Am I the only person who will know when the treasure is found? (I think the "I" in the question refers to a treasure hunter asking the question) A: That's not something I want to expand on, but it is fair to say that the finder will need to come forward in the 30 day window in order to collect the Bitcoin prize. 316	When Treasure is Found	Q: Does the steward have other treasure items for the eventual finder? A: Yes.	BTME Announcements page (after Cowlazars & Kpro interview)	03/31/25	https://treasurequest/en/announcements/

317	When Treasure is Found	Q: You said there will be a 30-day clock that starts when somebody finds it, which sounds like you know when somebody finds it in order to start that 30-day clock. Are you the only one that knows when somebody does find it? Or will the steward also know when somebody finds it. A: It's not something I can actually expand on. I don't want to give too much away here. But I think it's fair to say that there is a countdown and people do need to come forward within that 30-day window in order to collect the Bitcoin proceeds. 319	When Treasure is Found	Q: Is contacting the steward a way to ensure legal rights to the treasure? A: There's some additional legal paperwork that's on file with the steward that would be quite important for the finder to have. It should be apparent through documentation included with the treasure that the finder will need to contact the steward. Additionally, there are some other items being held by the steward that would be of interest to whoever finds the treasure. 320	When Treasure is Found	Q: When the treasure is found, will you post a 30-day countdown on your website? A: Yeah, I think I will. I think that's only fair.	Treasure Hunt with Us interview	04/09/25	https://youtu.be/rWC7X3LDZ24?si=K3zHUErZdti3B4Vi
321	When Treasure is Found	Q: For anyone who would struggle with carrying 60 pounds in one trip, can you give us any advice on how to retrieve the treasure container and its contents successfully? (if you can't carry all in one trip) A: So, if you figured out exactly where the treasure is at, you will have sufficient time to plan how you wish to retrieve it. 322	When Treasure is Found	Q: Setting aside whether the treasure is found tomorrow or years from now, how will you personally know this hunt was a success? A: I think that there are enough mechanics in play such that I will know when the treasure has been found and action can be taken at that time. Now, I could get run over by a bus tomorrow, and I have to ensure that the treasure hunt can run smoothly without me being here, and I feel confident that it can. I think that's about all I can say about that.	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s
323	When Treasure is Found	Q: What responsibilities does the steward have once the treasure is found, especially regarding verification and disclosure? A: The steward plays a very important role. The steward is there for a couple of different reasons. One is to verify the authenticity of the Finder, to make sure that they genuinely found the treasure. And there is a foolproof way that that happens. And it also is what you call zero knowledge in its approach, in the sense that the steward does not know where the treasure is at, but based on the true finder that comes forward, a few things can be divulged...can be deciphered. One is yes, this person is telling the truth. They are the one person that found the treasure. And two, we can say with 100% certainty where the treasure was. And then once that process is complete, the steward is in possession of additional items that will be released to the person that finds the treasure. Probably most notably is the other half of the Bitcoin wallet key. And it's actually some other interesting things as well. And then the other responsibility of the steward is to ensure that no one continues to search, because you don't, certainly don't want people out searching for something that's already been found. So those are really the main responsibilities, and I think they're very...it's a vital part of a well-constructed treasure hunt. 324	When Treasure is Found	Q: Once the hunt concludes, how transparent do you intend to be about the solution and the process? A: That's a good question. You know, it's funny, when this treasure hunt first started, I thought, I want to move this along quickly, and I still do. That being said, I also don't want to alienate somebody who has put in the time and the effort and feel that they are close, and to kind of rob them of that by limping everybody else along to near the finish line. And I think the same could be said post-treasure hunt as well. Maybe there are people out there that want to continue to solve the clues for fun and kind of figure it out on their own. But I suspect there will be more people, way more people that will just want to know what was it. And so my plan at this time is is to actually release the full solution that would include, you know, a key, or the solution to all the clues and and I think, in order to put things to rest, to show the authentic, genuine nature of the treasure hunt, some supporting documentation would also be released to give zero doubt to people that it was hidden at a specified location. So that's my plan.	A Gypsy's Kiss YouTube Interview	01/07/26	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YCrJwftNSk&t=340s
